Microsoft has announced that support for pools in SharePoint Server 2010 will be dropped in a future release of the product. "When this change is made, all existing content will be preserved, but we will discontinue support for pools on SharePoint 2010," the company stated in its official SharePoint White Paper. Furthermore, Microsoft said it plans to expand the current 3.5 GB setting for the maximum file size that can be uploaded and shared, within the new limits. The new maximum file size for uploading and sharing is 10 GB and "will require a significant change in SharePoint 2010 to take advantage of the larger file size. To do so, we will add and support features within SharePoint for file size detection," the company said. "When file size is no longer an issue and users are no longer limited to a maximum file size of 3.5 GB, we will no longer 6d1f23a050
